Allevamento Piccolo Levriero Italiano Cuccioli Milano: A Complete Guide to Breeding and Caring for Italian Greyhound Puppies in Milan

When you think of a small, elegant companion that exudes grace, charm, and an unmistakable Italian flair, the Italian Greyhound—known in Italy as Levriero Italiano—often comes to mind. In the bustling, fashion forward city of Milan, many pet lovers are drawn to this miniature sighthound for its affectionate nature and striking appearance. However, acquiring a puppy from a reputable allevamento piccolo levriero italiano cuccioli milano(small Italian Greyhound breeding in Milan) requires careful consideration, knowledge, and preparation.

This guide offers a comprehensive overview of everything you need to know about Italian Greyhound breeding in Milan, from choosing the right breeder to caring for your new family member. Whether you're a first time owner, a seasoned dog enthusiast, or simply curious about this elegant breed, read on to discover the secrets of successful breeding, health management, and lifelong companionship.

Why the Italian Greyhound?

The Italian Greyhound is one of the world's smallest sighthounds, yet it carries a personality that's larger than life. Here's why this breed is a top choice for many Milanese households:

- Size & Energy: Weighing between 7–14 /lbs (3–6 /kg), these dogs fit comfortably in apartments while still providing a burst of energy during playtime.
- Temperament: Known for their loyalty, affection, and intelligence, they thrive on human companionship.
- Low Shedding: Their short coat requires minimal grooming, making them ideal for owners with allergies.
- Versatility: Whether you live near the Navigli canals or in a high rise apartment, the Italian Greyhound adapts gracefully.
- Health Profile: With proper care, they enjoy a long, healthy life—often 12–15 years.

Because of these attributes, a small Italian Greyhound breeding in Milanis an attractive option for those looking to add a stylish, low maintenance companion to their home.

Understanding the Breed: Traits & Care Basics

Physical Characteristics

Italian Greyhounds are slender, athletic dogs with a sleek, streamlined body. Key features include:

- Long, slender legs and a graceful gait.
- Large, dark eyes that convey curiosity.
- Short, fine coat that can come in a variety of colors—black, fawn, blue, or a mix.
- Thin, delicate ears that stand up when alert.

Temperament & Personality

Italian Greyhounds are:

- Affectionate: They thrive on human interaction and enjoy curling up in laps.
- Alert & Curious: Their keen senses make them excellent watchdogs.

- Highly Intelligent: They learn quickly but can be a bit stubborn; patience is key.
- Social & Friendly: They get along well with other dogs and children when properly socialized.

Health Considerations

While generally healthy, Italian Greyhounds can be prone to certain conditions. Keep an eye on:

- Hip Dysplasia: A genetic issue that can cause arthritis if not monitored.
- Heart Murmurs: Regular vet checks can catch early signs.
- Eye Problems: Cataracts or dry eye can occur; regular eye exams are recommended.
- Temperature Regulation: Their thin coat and low body fat mean they can overheat easily.

Choosing the Right Breeder in Milan

Finding a trustworthy breeder is paramount. A reputable allevamento piccolo levriero italiano cuccioli milano will prioritize the health and well being of their dogs. Here's how to spot a quality breeder:

1. Verify Credentials

- Check for Italian Greyhound Club of Italy (ICCI) membership.
- Look for Veterinary Oversight—breeders should provide health certificates.
- Ask for Genetic Testing records, especially for hip and heart conditions.

2. Visit the Facility

During a visit:

- Observe the living conditions: clean, spacious, and well ventilated.
- Meet the puppies and their mothers to gauge social behavior.
- Ask about the breeding program—breeders should use responsible mating practices.

3. Review Health Protocols

Reputable breeders will:

- Provide a health guarantee covering major genetic issues.
- Offer vaccination records and microchip details.
- Maintain a detailed breeding log for each puppy.

4. Ask About After Sale Support

Good breeders stay involved after the sale:

- Provide a care guide tailored to the puppy's needs.
- Offer veterinary referrals in the Milan area.
- Be available for questions during the first few months.

5. Avoid Red Flags

Signs of a questionable breeder include:

- Limited or no documentation of health testing.
- Overcrowded or unsanitary conditions.
- Pressure to buy immediately without proper research.
- Unwillingness to provide references or a contract.

Preparing Your Home for a New Italian Greyhound Puppy

Before bringing your puppy home, ensure your environment is safe, welcoming, and puppy friendly.

1. Puppy Proof Your Living Space

- Secure loose wires and cords.
- Remove toxic plants like philodendron or sago palm.
- Block off stairs with baby gates if you have young children.

2. Create a Dedicated Space

Set up a cozy corner with:

- A comfortable crate or bed.
- Soft blankets and a small toy.
- Access to a water bowl and a shallow food dish.

3. Stock Up on Essentials

- Food & Treats: High quality puppy food with balanced protein.
- Grooming Supplies: Soft brush, nail clippers, ear cleaner.
- Training Tools: Clicker, small treats, and a leash.
- Basic Vet Kit: Microchip scanner, first aid supplies.

4. Plan a Vet Visit

Schedule a wellness check within the first week to:

- Confirm vaccination schedule.
- Check for parasites or congenital issues.
- Discuss diet and exercise plans.

Feeding & Nutrition

1. Puppy Diet Guidelines

Italian Greyhound puppies need high calorie, protein rich food to support rapid growth. Aim for:

- 25–30% protein and 15–20% fat.
- Low to moderate fiber content to avoid digestive upset.
- Avoid large kibble that may be difficult to chew.

2. Feeding Schedule

Feed 3–4 small meals a day during the first six months. Transition to two meals by 12 months.

3. Treats & Rewards

Use small, low calorie treats for training. Avoid sugary or fatty snacks.

Training Your Italian Greyhound

1. House Training

Start immediately. Use a consistent cue like “Go potty” and reward promptly. Keep a strict schedule for meals, walks, and bathroom breaks.

2. Basic Commands

Teach:

- “Sit” – foundational for obedience.
- – helps with safety.
- “Come” – essential for recall.
- Use positive reinforcement and keep sessions short (5–10 /minutes).

3. Socialization

Expose your puppy to:

- Various people, ages, and genders.
- Other dogs of different sizes and temperaments.
- Different environments: parks, streets, public transport.

Gradual exposure reduces fear and promotes confidence.

4. Handling & Grooming

Italian Greyhounds are delicate. Regular handling helps them become comfortable with:

- Brushing and nail trimming.
- Ear cleaning.
- Bathing (once a month).

Health Care & Preventative Measures

1. Vaccination Schedule

Core vaccines for Italian Greyhounds include:

- Rabies
- Parvovirus
- Distemper
- Canine Influenza (optional)

2. Regular Check Ups

Annual vet visits for:

- Dental exam.
- Heart murmur assessment.
- Hip dysplasia screening.

3. Parasite Prevention

Use flea, tick, and worm prevention as recommended by your vet.

4. Exercise & Activity

Despite their small size, Italian Greyhounds need daily exercise:

- Short walks (15–20 /minutes) in the morning and evening.
- Indoor play sessions to burn off excess energy.
- Avoid intense workouts that risk joint strain.

Common Myths About Italian Greyhounds

1. They’re too fragile. While delicate, they’re robust and can thrive with proper care.
2. They require excessive grooming. Their short coat needs minimal maintenance.

3. They’re not good apartment dogs. Their small size and calm temperament make them ideal for city living.
