Plot Summary: SparkNotes All Things Fall Apart

Chapter 1 3: The Rise of Okonkwo

Okonkwo, a renowned warrior, rises to prominence in the Igbo village of Umuofia. His determination to distance himself from his father's failures shapes his early years, as he becomes a symbol of strength and discipline.

Chapter 4 6: Family Life and Early Conflict

Okonkwo's marriage to Nwoye's mother, Ekwefi, introduces domestic tension. The novel explores how Okonkwo's rigid worldview strains his relationships, especially with his son, Nwoye.

Chapter 7 10: The Arrival of Europeans

European missionaries and traders arrive, bringing Christianity and new technologies. Okonkwo's resistance to these outsiders sets the stage for cultural clashes that will reverberate throughout the story.

Chapter 11 14: The Erosion of Tradition

As the Igbo people grapple with foreign influence, internal divisions surface. The novel's tension escalates, culminating in a series of tragic events that challenge the community's cohesion.

Chapter 15 17: The Climax and Aftermath

Okonkwo's desperate attempts to preserve his identity lead to a series of personal and communal tragedies. The final chapters reveal the profound consequences of colonial intrusion and the fragility of cultural heritage.
